Some Ministry and House Church Reports

Transitions in the Cariboo: Shannon Bell-Wyminga

Change is inevitable – except in vending machines. Since the mission of the Cariboo is not a vending machine, we can expect that we will go through changes. This ministry from its inception has been about constant change. House churches grow; people grow up, move away or pass on; the faces in the living room come and go; some churches cease while others multiply. Those of us who have been a part of this ministry over the past decades can look back and see with wonder how things have changed, grown and developed over those years.

Only a few of us have been around since the beginning. (I can count them on my fingers!) One of the biggest changes is what we have experienced in the past few months - this ministry moving forward without the leadership of David and Linda Webber. It is a tribute to their hard work that the mission of the Cariboo Presbyterian Church has not changed, but continues to be lived out in various forms all over the region. We will continue to shift, transform and grow as we walk forward together to carry forth God's vision given to the Webbers.

We have much to celebrate in the transition time. Two house churches in Williams Lake now meet and carry out their ministries with their own leadership, not requiring one of the full-time pastors to keep things going. Bruce Wilcox has been called out of volunteer ministry to full-time work among us, bringing his many gifts, fulfilling the vision of raising up local leadership from among the people of the congregation. Members of each house church participate faithfully in their own unique ways, serving the mission of Christ in each community.

This time also presents us with challenges. We have the opportunity within the Presbyterian Church in Canada to help the church as a whole begin to grapple with how to incorporate lay missionaries and other leaders into the decision-making structures of the church. This is beginning with the commissioning of elders to lead us in the sacraments but needs to go much further as more and more churches in the future will need to consider how to be the church without a full time paid minister.

As we move from a year and a half of having three full-time ministers back to having two, we will need to consider how to ensure that all the work that has been done in the past can continue to be done effectively and efficiently.

Financially we will continue to rely on the support of every member of the congregation as well as our faithful supporters in many other places. With this transition, the grant we have received from Presbyterians Sharing through Canadian Ministries for the Cariboo ministry position (now Bruce Wilcox) has been decreased this year to $11,500 from $20,000 in previous years. This is a significant reduction which we trust that God will help us to make up for. The full grant for Jon and I for Native ministries remains the same.

While we celebrate with the Webbers their time of rest and retirement, we are all called to journey together into the future, asking God what we might be called to do so that this mission of Christ can continue in the process of change and growth. What new thing might the Lord show you? What aspect of ministry will you be led to move into? What new way can you reach out to those in your community with the love of Christ? There is always pain with change, but we are kingdom builders. The Bible often describes the coming of the kingdom like a woman in labour.

There is pain and hard work, but the results are spectacular! I started with a quote so will finish with one: If nothing ever changed, there'd be no butterflies.

Its About Giving:

Elaine Adams, Interlakes Kids Space

It was her idea. A teen with a heart for giving suggested, "What if we spend some of the money made at the Soup and Bun Lunch fund raiser on a family? We'll give some of the money away and keep some for our field trips." The rest of us ran with her and her idea.

The first time Teen Space had a shopping excursion we bought food for three families. The three families were all different in size and ages. We all learned a lot about team work. This excursion happened in the spring.

The second time we bought gifts for a family with five children. We filled stockings to be placed under their tree Christmas morning. All the gifts reflected the creativity of the teens.

This last time we shopped for a family with three children. We divided into three groups with one purchasing food for breakfast, the second for dinner, and the third for gifts. As in the first excursion this one happened just because it's spring time.

The third time I was privileged to deliver the bags of shopping. I called the Mother the night before saying Teen Space has a shopping trip for a family with the objective of learning to give. We would like her and her family to be the recipients. She agreed even if somewhat tentatively. But, when I stopped by her home with the bags the mother was all smiles. Because of these bags of groceries the pay cheque was going to go just a bit further. She gave me a big Cariboo hug.

As the teens were shopping they were asked to keep this anonymous family in mind. They were to think about them. Some of the teens would be praying. It is fun to shop for someone else for no better reason than it is spring.

Another Teen Space fund raiser is starting on the May long weekend. The teens are selling hot dogs at the Loon Bay Market in Interlakes every Saturday until the Labour Day weekend. This is a beautiful setting with fine young people who work together to earn the money they so graciously share together. It is a wonderful idea.

Spring Greetings from Sheridan Lake: Jody Malm

It is absolutely pouring rain as I write this. I love the sound of rain and it is a perfect time to write a quick note about Sheridan Lake House Church. Everything feels like normal, I think.

-Families are having spring time colds and flu, these are playing a bit of havoc but generally we are as healthy as can be with the usual aches and pains. (You know some of us are not getting any younger.)

-Animals are doing what comes naturally in the spring; calving, lambing, having bunnies, chicks to be delivered. Isn't life amazing!

-Fields are being planted and fertilized and gardens are almost planted, Yeah. (Not to mention numerous trips to the garden center.)

Now we pray for rain and good growing weather.

House church, right, I think I lost my train of thought! Well, we are enjoying great music by Harold, Bruce, Alamaz and teachings provided by Bruce, and Ginny when Bruce is away. There is much visiting about the word during and sometimes after. Then the prayer time is a time of sharing what is on our hearts. We wrap up with coffee and deserts and a birthday wish to someone. Funny I think we have maybe one month with no birthdays but that could be wrong now.

I bet that sounds not too far off of each of the other house churches. I actually have said to Dave over the past ten years or more that I would like to go around and attend each of the house churches. I see the names and emails on the prayer list, and it would be great to put all the names to faces and to see the location of the other house churches. I always think of us all as one huge family. We know the ones that are close to us but wouldn't it be neat to know the others. One day I will do this; it is kinda on my list. I do like lists: to do lists, buckets lists, and of course my don't forget lists. I think this is may be why I am looking so forward to the Rendezvous in June. I may not see the home but I get to meet the heart of each house church!

With that said I hope to see you all on June 13 and I pray that each of you has had a great spring with the much needed rain, that your summer will be full of green grass, some fun in the sun and a walk in the woods: a special time to enjoy all of God's creations.

Ts'ekookoh Dakelh 'Unzoo Weekend (Beautiful Dakelh Women Weekend): Shannon Bell-Wyminga

Beautiful Dakelh women. We have many of them in Ndazkoh, but not all are aware much of the time of the beauty that the Creator put in these precious daughters. A weekend away was just the thing to encourage and affirm these women from our community. May 1-3, 2015 took twelve of us from Ndazkoh and two speakers to Ness Lake Bible Camp where we booked Founder's Cottage for the weekend. We left behind the worries and cares of family and community and work to listen to Dr. Cheryl Bear and Pastor Christina Dawson share the love of the Creator with us all. Cheryl is an internationally known singer, song-writer, pastor and author who is proud of her Dakelh heritage. She is a band councilor with the Nadleh band (west of Prince George) and part of Street Church in Vancouver's Downtown Eastside where her husband Randy Barnetson is the pastor. Christina is the associate pastor of Street Church and comes from the Tla-o-qui-aht First Nation on Vancouver Island.

Cheryl and Christina shared stories and scriptures that honoured the beautiful culture of the

First Nations. Cheryl recounted some of her memories of the teachings of her grandmothers and aunties which line up with so many of the teachings of the Old Testament. She talked about cleansing ceremonies and pointed us to the cleansing that comes to us in Jesus. Christina shared experiences of how God has spoken to her and guided her in her life. She shared her regalia with the group as did Cheryl, both expressing the importance of their families and identity as First Nations women.

The weekend wasn't all just listening as we played games, did crafts and ate way too much of the continual meals provided by the camp. Good thing we had to walk to get to the dining hall! Our worship was enhanced as many of us joined together around the big drum lifting our voices in words and chant that glorified Jesus.

And we prayed! We had the privilege of seeing God answer prayer on the Saturday evening. We received word that there had been a serious vehicle accident involving three young men from our community. One of them was reported to be unconscious and unresponsive. His mother and grandmother were both with us at camp. We prayed for them before I drove them the two hours back to Quesnel to the hospital. We prayed and talked on the drive as well. When we got to the hospital we learned that this young man was ready to be released with only a broken arm and cracked ribs! The driver had to be sent for surgery in Prince George with a crushed hip and the other passenger had a bumped face. We all rejoiced in how our Creator had saved their lives.

We were grateful to be able to spend this weekend away together hearing about God's wonderful love for us as women. It was so important that our women could know that the Creator loves them as Dakelh women, affirming the good things in their culture and traditions that point to Jesus.

Summer Ministry at Bible Camp: Joelle Wyminga

Once again this summer I will be returning to Ness Lake Bible Camp. This will be my fourth summer on staff. This summer I have the joy of being a Cabin Leader. I will get to spend my entire summer looking after cabins of about 10 girls, hanging out with them and leading different skill blocks. I am so excited to be able to show the campers who

God is and what he did for us. My job throughout the summer is just to be able to open the kids' minds and teach them about our loving and truly wonderful God. I am there to support these kids and to share with them the love of God. Ness Lake's mission statement is: "To glorify God by making Jesus Christ known by word and deed through camping and conference programs." Even though it is hard work and I barely get any time off, and will have plenty of mosquito bites, I am so stoked to go back and show these kids love in every possible way. I also will get to build strong relationships with the other staff members who I will be able to lean on, and support throughout the summer. The past summers I have worked there I have had the time of my life. One of the best feelings you can have is knowing that you have changed someone's life, just by telling them about the love that God has for us. If you are interested in what I am going to be doing this summer, and you just want to do something to help, the best thing you can do for me is to pray. Pray that I would have guidance as to what God really wants me to focus on this summer, and that I will have patience with those cabins that are hard to handle. Pray that while I am helping kids build relationships with God, that I would be building my relationship with God too. In the fall, I will be returning to Trinity Western University to continue a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Acting degree. This past year at Trinity has been the most wonderful and life changing time of my life. Being able to study what I love in a Christian environment with loving friends all around me is amazing, however it doesn't come free. Because I will be volunteering at camp I won't be able to make a ton of money for school. So, if you are interested in financially supporting me in my summer mission that would be greatly appreciated. Thank you so much for your prayers and support, and have a wonderful summer.

Editor's Note: If you would like to support Joelle in this camp ministry, any donations made through the Cariboo Presbyterian Church will be matched with a grant from TWU. You can send a cheque to the Cariboo Presbyterian Church and make a note on it: Joelle Wyminga summer mission.

Wittenberg's "Concert with a Cause"

If you happen to be in Williams Lake on Tuesday, June 23 and you want to make a difference in the world and have some fun all at the same time, why not attend the "Concert with a Cause"? The concert will feature the band "Wittenberg" which was officially formed in 2008. The original members are four brothers: Isaac, Jesse, Jacob and Seth Steward. All four of them have been a part of the Cariboo House Church Ministry since about 2007. In fact their first "official" concert set was performed at our Coffee House Ministry in Lac la Hache. (Previously they had only performed a couple of songs at a youth talent night in a church in Vernon, BC.) In December of 2009, they released an album entitled To Whom It May Concern. Their musical style is a mix of pop rock, folk-acoustic with splashes of other musical influences in between. Over the years, the group has maintained its core values as a Christian band and has played sporadically at fundraisers and events throughout the Cariboo Region. Recently a fifth member has joined the band. Lyndon Froese brings a unique and valuable enhancement to the group's overall sound. Enjoyable listening for most anybody, Wittenberg is a must hear if you have the opportunity! You can have a listen to their music at

<https://myspace.com/wittenbergreform/music/songs>

"Concert with a Cause" is being held to raise money for fresh water wells in Kenya and Malawi, a project of Presbyterian World Service and Development. All ticket proceeds will go directly to this cause and there will be an opportunity for further donations at the concert. Envelopes for income tax purposes will be available. This special event is proudly sponsored by the Cariboo Presbyterian House Church Ministry.

The concert starts at 7:00 pm at Cariboo Bethel Church, on 833 Western Avenue in Williams Lake. Tickets are available at Hopkins Design Studio and Johnston Meier Insurance in Williams Lake, Joyful Expressions in Quesnel, One Another Coffee House in 100 Mile House and anywhere Dancing Goat Coffee is sold. They can also be purchased online at <https://www.eventbrite.ca/e/concert-with-a-cause-tickets-16546037644>. Come out, have some fun and make a difference all at the same time!

Some Words of Encouragement

God's Covenant Faithfulness: Bruce Wilcox

When we were on a recent trip to Israel we stayed for a while at the Jerusalem Hills Inn, which is, guess where . . . in the hills not too far from Jerusalem. Our gracious host shared some very interesting history with us of this particular area we were in. Called Abu Ghosh, and mostly Arab today, this was apparently also the very area of the ancient city of Gibeon.

Now there's quite a history about Gibeon, which we see in the book of Joshua, Chapter 9. These were Hivites, one of the nations that Joshua and the Israelites were commanded by God to eliminate or drive out of the land of Canaan. But they sent a delegation to Joshua pretending to have come from a distant country, with worn out wineskins and clothes, and moldy old bread. Fearing for their lives, these Gibeonites tricked Joshua and Israel into making a treaty of peace with them. And the scripture says concerning this, that Israel "did not inquire of the Lord." (Josh 9:14). So Joshua formally ratified an agreement, a covenant with these people who were well within the borders of the Promised Land. This was not in obedience to God's will at all (see Ex 34:11,12 for example) because he made the mistake in the first place of not taking the situation to the Lord.

So the interesting question about this which I believe is highly relevant to our own lives, and to our own walk with the Lord is this: because Plan "A" was messed up by Joshua, does that mean that God then has to resort to some sort of secondary, inferior Plan "B", which somehow ties His hands or hinders Him from still fully accomplishing His purposes in Joshua's life and for Israel?

Well, if we keep reading these scriptures, we see in Chapter 10 that as a direct result of this treaty/covenant, all five of the Amorite kings of the hill country of central Canaan (including Jerusalem), gathered themselves together to fight and punish Gibeon for making peace with Joshua. And the result of that was an all-night march and then a huge God-given victory for Joshua over all of them in one climactic battle, which saw the Lord also rain down large hailstones, and then actually stop the sun in the sky! This is one of the greatest miracles in the Bible. "There has never been a day like it before or since..." (Josh 10:14), when Joshua said in the sight of Israel: "Sun, stand still over Gibeon..."

I find this immensely encouraging to remember when I mess up. And I hope you do too, because let's face it, we all mess up, and sometimes royally! But the beautiful thing about God's sovereignty and control is His amazing patience, grace, love and perfect wisdom for us within that. It's like His Plan "A" is always being accomplished, one way or another, for us who love Him, because even if we are not always faithful, He is always faithful, "for he cannot deny (or disown) Himself", as the Scripture also says.

Something else very intriguing about this story is that even though this covenant was originally a "mistake", God still took it very seriously and expected Israel to honour it, not only after it was first made, but even hundreds of years later! In 2 Samuel Chapter 21 we see a famine had been happening for three years in Israel during the reign of David. Why? Because some years earlier King Saul had broken that agreement with the Gibeonites by trying to annihilate them. The land was only healed when David allowed the Gibeonites to avenge themselves through seven of Saul's descendants.

So here's the thing: if the Lord takes a "man-made" bilateral covenant this seriously, then how much more absolutely infallible and iron-clad is any covenant that God Himself unilaterally initiates and makes by His grace? And therefore how much more totally guaranteed is our security and salvation forever in His hands, in His New Covenant which has been eternally written for us from the foundation of the world in the blood of Christ (God) Himself!

So we can take heart. No matter what this world throws at us, and even in the face of our mistakes and many imperfections, the Lord keeps re-working the clay - and never into something inferior, but only somehow more and more into the image of Christ.

One last intriguing thing . . . our host at the Jerusalem Hills Inn that evening happened to mention that the predominately Arab population of the Abu Ghosh area today get along better with the Jews, are more co-operative and supportive and join the Israeli Defense Force in greater numbers than the Arabs anywhere else in Israel! Makes you wonder if that's just a coincidence, or is something else still at play there.

Musing on The Diary of Anne Frank:

Gordon Kellett

“Think of all the beauty around you and be happy.”

“I want to go on living after my death, and therefore I am grateful to God for giving me this gift . . . of expressing all that is in me.”

The above quotations are from The Diary of Anne Frank, who lived from 1929-1945. Anne Frank has been one of my heroines ever since I read her diary as a teenager. The diary is the chronicle of a young Jewish girl who spent over two years hiding in an Amsterdam attic with her father, mother, sister and four others in Nazi-occupied Holland during WW2. It is also the story of the couple who hid them and daily risked their lives to do so.

But it is mostly the story of a brilliant young teenager on her journey to womanhood. Despite living in constant fear of discovery, Anne's writings reveal a young woman of hope, faith, curiosity and courage. And beliefs that she never lost. Sadly, Anne did not live to fulfill her promise and her dreams. At age 15, she died in Bergen-Belsen concentration camp in 1945. Everyone else in that attic also perished, except her Father. Her diary was first published in English in 1952, and has been read by teenagers and many others around the world in over fifty languages.

It had a profound effect on me as a young man and it continues to do so. I have never forgotten the feelings of hope and faith that Anne expressed, and they inspire me to this day. It has been fifty years since I read it, but it continues to remind me of how blessed I am, and that faith and hope remain constant no matter what circumstances we find ourselves in.

After Jesus died on the cross for our salvation He overcame death and rose from the grave. Before He ascended to His Father He gave His apostles a commission to spread the gospel to the whole world.

He also promised to stay with them (and us) to the end of the age, and to the ends of the earth. Jesus has kept that promise. No matter what befalls us, He never leaves us. I believe that He was with Anne and her family and friends throughout their terrible ordeal and its outcome, and is with us through all our lives as well. He is Risen!

(Editor's Note: Coincidentally [or perhaps not so] two young people who grew up in our house church ministry will be acting in a production of "The Diary of Anne Frank" in the fall. Shelby Dumoulin (nee. Wyminga) and her sister Joelle Wyminga are now Theatre students at Trinity Western University where the play will be presented from October 28 – November 7, 2015. A Prayer for Those Who Live Alone

Submitted by Gordon Kellett

I live alone, dear Lord, stay by my side.
In all my daily needs, be thou my guide.
Grant me good health, for that indeed I pray;
To carry on my work, from day to day.
Keep pure my mind, my thoughts, my every deed,
Let me be kind, unselfish in my neighbour's need.
Spare me from fire, from flood, malicious tongues,
From thieves, from fear, and evil ones.
If sickness or an accident befall,
Then humbly Lord I pray, hear Thou my call.
And when I'm feeling low, or in despair,
Lift up my heart and help me in my prayer.
I live alone, dear Lord, yet have no fear,
Because I feel Your Presence ever near. Amen.
(from a mission at San Juan Capistrano, Calif. that Gordon visited in 1981.)

Did I? Jody Malm

(First published in the Presbyterian Record in March, 2015.)

Did I?

Did I? I wonder, sit on the floor and truly admire my children?

Did I? As a parent, watch them play?
Absorbing how their little fingers move, pick up a toy, put food in their mouth, and then hold a sippy cup and drink?

Did I? As I changed them, look at their chubby legs, cute bottom and their tiny toes? Look at how perfectly their legs move and how their belly wiggles when I blow bubbles on their tummy?

Did I? Smile and giggle along with them?
Watch them be thrilled with themselves, with the task they are so proud of and clap my hands in praise?

Did I? As I rose their arms over their head, touch and rub their soft little back, tickle under their arms? Look at how all their body is joined together so magnificently?

Did I? Watch their sleep, seeing their breath come and go? Not able to take my eyes off such a peaceful, beautiful, heartwarming sight?

Did I? Smell them from head to toe and think there is no smell like that of a baby?

Did I? Look into their trusting, loving, smiling eyes and face, and really see them?

Did I?

As the years have passed and now I am a grandmother, I wonder, did I?

I really hope so. I don't think I was the parent that did it all right or the one who did it all wrong. I was probably the "average Jo". (No pun intended.) Now, as a grandmother, I want to do more, see more, laugh more, and love them more. I don't want to wonder, did I? Oh how I pray that I can be all these things and will take time to do all these things. Then I think of God, my father. Did he?

As I read my Bible, I find time and time again that he did and still does remember. A large lump wells in my throat. He remembers, from my baby toe to the gray hairs on my head. God was there when I was born, as I grew up, when I became a parent, and now as a grandma. I kind of think I may see and feel as I am reflecting, how God feels about each of us.

He loves us unconditionally, like I love my grandchildren!

"But you, O Lord, are a compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger, abounding in love and faithfulness." (Psalm 86:15, NIV)

I hope I had these same powerful feelings for my own children, but I wonder, did I?

I am human and I do forget. I thank God that he isn't and that he won't forget.

"Can a woman forget her nursing child, and not have compassion on the son of her womb? Surely they may forget. Yet I will not forget you. See, I have inscribed you on the palms of My hands; Your walls are continually before me." (Isaiah 49: 15-16, NKJV)

Falafel (Chick-pea Patties)

Falafel is sold on street corners in every city and town in Israel. Some call it the "Israeli hamburger." Its popularity can be attributed in no small part to the Yemenite Jews who have brought a particularly tasty version onto the culinary scene. Students living on a meager budget consume full-portion falafels in whole pitas on the sidewalks as their noon "dinner."

Ingredients:

- 1 lb. canned chick-peas (drained)
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 tbs. finely chopped parsley
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 to 1 cup breadcrumbs or fine bulgur
- 1 tsp. ground coriander or cumin
- 1 tsp. dried hot peppers
- 1 tsp. garlic powder
- vegetable oil (for frying)

Preparation:

Combine chick-peas with onion. Add parsley, lightly beaten egg and spices. Mix in blender. Add breadcrumbs until mixture forms a small ball without sticking to your hands. Form chick-pea mixture into small balls about the size of a quarter (one inch in diameter). Flatten patties slightly and fry until golden brown on both sides. Drain falafel balls on paper towels. Serve individually with toothpicks as an hors d'oeuvre or as a sandwich filling with chopped tomato, cucumber, radish, lettuce, onion, hummus and/or tehina inside pita bread. Makes about 24 falafel balls.

Avocado, Tomato & Feta Dip

A Final Thank You:

Thank you to everyone who continues to support us through your payers and financial contributions. 2014 was a huge challenge as we had three missionary stipends to support. That has now dropped back down to two for the latter part of 2015, but we continue to be able to do this work only because of your generous support. Thanks again!
